

British Values

The British values are important parts in our life: we live alongside them. They shape our lives into who we are today and who we will be in the future. I am proud to be part of Britain because everyone has a voice and we have an outstanding NHS team. The four British Values are: mutual respect and tolerance, democracy, rule of law and individual liberty. These rules apply for everyone and I want to share my ideas and thoughts about them with you.

Democracy

Democracy is an important part of our British Values. This British Value is put in place to ensure everyone has a say for what they believe. At Warden Hill it is no different as for we vote for our: house, vice and sports captain alongside us electing who we believe would be good for the role of school council and eco warrior. The year sixes prepare speeches to perform to the whole of the house when everyone next comes together. This helps to prepare us for our life ahead: voting for our Prime Minister.

Rule of Law

The Rule of Law is an essential part. The reason why is so that we are kept safe from danger. At Warden Hill Primary School we have golden rules all throughout the school. If anyone is caught breaking any of the rules there will be a consequence to make sure that they don't do it again to keep everyone else safe.

Mutual Respect and Tolerance

Mutual Respect and Tolerance is to celebrate diversity and to be treated equally. In Warden Hill we always respect and listen to everyone: no matter what gender, religion, belief or skin colour. This very inspirational man, who we have been learning all about in our RE lessons, called Mahatma Gandhi quoted 'be the change you want to see in the world'. He fought for what he believed in using a good technique against the British, satyagraha (non-violent resistance). At Warden Hill I am proud to say that there is no racism or sexism and never will be in the future.

Individual Liberty

Individual Liberty is freedom to make our own choices in life. At Warden Hill it is no different as I get the freedom to audition for any part I truly want and believe I would be good as for our school assemblies whether I succeed or fail.

British Values

There are many opportunities to have individual liberty: picking clubs, sports, writing and more.

British values make us who we are. They give us help through self-confidence to make our own choices, a voice, they make us understand that every individual is unique in their own way and keep us safe. Out of all of these mutual respect and tolerance is the main one to me because I believe everyone should be treated the same.
